Versatile sew in weaves

First, cut the selvage (edges) from the fabric. Next, square the ends, and cut the width of the fabric in half. Place both pieces of fabric on a flat surface with the right sides of the fabric and make sure they are completely smooth. Trim both layers of fabric to match the edges and they are identical. Align the edges and pin them together. Instead of using one fabric, you can choose two coordinating fabrics for the exclusive front and back to the scarf. You will need 2 yards of each fabric to get the right length of your scarf, and both fabrics must be 45 inches wide. But with 2 yards of each fabric, you will be able to make two shawls when you cut the width in half. Spruce/Debbie Colgrove Find one long side in the center (folding length in half and marking times), and measure 3 inches to each side of the center to mark the 6-inch area. At the beginning and end of the 6-inch area, place double pins or make marks with fabric marking tools, such as tailor's chalk. These pins or tags will be reminders not sewn in that area. After leaving the 6-inch hole separately, sew all the edges using a 1/2 inch seam. Backstitch or lockstitch ensure your sewing. When reaching the corner, put the needle down, lift the foot of the press, turn the fabric and put the press leg down again to turn the corners. Spruce/ Debbie Colgrove Press all the seams as they were sewn. Then trim four corners and sort the seam allowance (trim the layers into different widths) to remove the bulk. Turn the scarf on the right side through the opening that you left on one side. Press the seams, so the stitching of the seam is on the very edge. Then the opening of the slip stitch is closed. You can also topstitch close to the edge to keep the edges in place, rotating corners, as you did when sewing seams. A running stitch can be used for most of anything – basting stitches is really just to keep two pieces of fabric together for fitting, applicator, or machine for sewing when the pins would get in the way! You begin by threading the needle and tying the end(s) of the thread. For a running stitch: bring your needle through the fabric from the back (or the wrong side of what lingo you want) until the knot hits the fabric. At this point, you just make a stitch to the left or right, where the thread came through. Then again tie the thread and start all over again! (You can make a standard up and down, or push the needle through and make several stitches at once.) When it comes to the end, just knot on the back side of your work. For basting stitches: make longer threads from 1/4 to 1/2 length! Pictures will make it easier to work. Follow along, now! Remember that running and basting stitches should look the same on both sides, and that running stitches work best when they are smaller and closer together – otherwise you can end up with your seam gap quite large. For more stitches, check the Bernina Good Housekeeping Institute Textile Laboratory has reviewed hundreds of machines to find the best styles for your home sewing projects, whether you like embroidery, blankets, clothes and masks, or beginner sewers want to learn. These heavy machines will help move your sewing skills to the next level. How to find the best sewing machinewhen shopping sewing machine, the essential question to ask yourself is: What is most important to me when I sew? In machines there are many different accessories, accessories and options that may not be available to you, and just add unnecessary costs, and other features without which you can not sew. Here are some specific features to look at before shopping:Number and styles of stitches offered: Beginner sewers will need only two stitches: Straight and zig zag. More experienced sewers should look for a wider variety. For example, if you like embroidery or blanket, make sure you are looking for machines that provide the following options: If your machine does not offer embroidery or free motion sewing, these features can not be added later. Also, make sure that the machine has the ability to adjust the length of the stitch, zig zag width and tension so that you can more control over your sewing. Included accessories: Most machines have bobbin and pressing foot, but some contain much more. To make the most blast of your buck, check that the machine has a zipper foot, a button hole in the foot, embroidery foot, a removable extended work desk, and a storage area. Additional features: Some machines include specific options that can make sewing a whole lot easier, such as a thread cutter, automatic needle thread, lights, free hand, blind stitching, and buttonhole options. When you have them, sometimes you can not imagine sewing on a machine without them. Frame construction: For the durability of the machine, you want to look for the option of a metal frame. Plastic frames are common, but can deteriorate faster and make them more difficult to repair. Like all sewing machines, before sewing, be sure to carefully read the following manual, since each machine has slightly different instructions for use and maintenance. Then sew!
